Jim Hunter, nicknamed by his teammates "Jungle Jim", was a member of the Canadian Men's Alpine Ski Team for 7-years, from April 1970 until April 1977. He earned a second nickname as the original "Crazy Canuck". His daring on the race course in Europe and North America set the style for the younger National Team downhill competitors who followed, the "Crazy Canucks", who became world celebrities between 1974 and 1984.

Although he never won a World Cup race, he placed among the top ten finishers on 17-occasions between 1972 and 1977, with 7-top ten finishes in Downhill and, to emphasize his versatility, 5-times in the Combined event. He best finish was a 3rd place finish in a Downhill event at Wengen, Switzerland, in 1976. In 1972, he became the first Canadian male skier to win a World Championship Bronze medal when he won a Federation Internationale de Ski (FIS) Medal in Combined events (Downhill, Giant Slalom and Slalom) at Sapporo, Japan.

He represented Canada at two Winter Olympic Games, in Sapporo, Japan in 1972 and Innsbruck, Austria, in 1976.
